Introduction

The mission of the educational studies major at Hiram College is to foster intellectual excellence and social responsibility by providing students a platform on which to engage and study the issues and implications of education in the myriad environments in which it exists in order to face the urgent challenges of the times.

Students considering educational studies as a major or minor are encouraged to seek an advisor in the program before making any final decision. Acceptance into the educational studies major or minor is contingent on a student passing EDUC 15000 EDUC CULTURE & SOCIETY:CA,UD and either EDUC 23100 HUMAN GROWTH/DEVELOP/LRNG:UD with corresponding lab (EDUC 23400 MID CHILD SCHOOL EXP/LAB or EDUC 23500 ADOLESCENT SCHOOL EXP AND LAB) or EDUC 22900 DEV APPROP PRACT:BIRTH-10:UD with corresponding lab (EDUC 23000 ELEMENTRY SCHOOL EXP AND LAB) with minimum grades of C.

Students in educational studies will learn about educational institutions, educational processes, and the social and cultural factors that affect them. Given the combination of the educational studies major and a carefully chosen area of concentration (AOC), the program provides an entry point into the study of the multidimensional field of education and analysis, as well as education of the individual and the collective. Students in educational studies are expected to develop such basic inquiry skills as problem formulation, basic analytic methods, as well as a critical understanding of how educational institutions function, individuals grow and change, and social groups are shaped by educational processes.
