Management

The Management program engages students in the complexity of and interaction between organizations, the human behavior within them, and the international and environmental contexts in which they operate. Our goal is to develop leaders of public and private organizations capable of success in a complex, rapidly changing global world. To accomplish this goal, we provide a strong ethical and analytical foundation through in-depth learning combined with a wide variety of practical experiences (on and off campus) to develop professional networks and relevant skills. Students can prepare for careers in human resources, international business, finance, public administration, and change management.

Recent management graduates have found successful employment in a wide variety of public and private organizations. Examples include financial institutions, major sports teams, international marketing organizations, nonprofit organizations, human resources departments, government agencies and the Foreign Service. Many have continued their studies in graduate programs including Master of Business Administration, law degrees, master's degree in organization development, international management, and public administration.

MGMT 11800: ORGANIZATIONAL BEHAVIOR:CA: 4 Hour(s)
ORGANIZATIONAL BEHAVIOR:CA: This course offers an introduction to the field of organizational behavior. The emphasis will be on learning theories and vocabulary to improve your analytic ability to make sense of behavior in organizations and to learn how to initiate an effective course of action. To this end, you will be exposed to some of the major ideas in the field and their disciplinary foundations in economics, psychology, social psychology, sociology, and anthropology. You will be asked to apply these ideas to your own experience and to the vicarious experience of case studies and simulations. We will cover such topics as intuition, decision-making, motivation, job design, organizational culture, personality and group dynamics, power and persuasion, innovation, social capital, and managing change, among others. This course fulfills the Social and Cultural Analysis requirement.
Core: Social/Cultural Analysis Meth

MGMT 15500: PRINCIPLES OF MANAGEMENT: 4 Hour(s)
PRINCIPLES OF MANAGEMENT ~ This course will provide the student with a conceptual framework for basic understanding of the management functions and process including planning, organizing, leading, directing, and controlling for establishing and accomplishing business objectives. This course will provide the student a broad overview of the subject of management, application of these concepts in real world scenarios; as well as with the basic skills that are necessary in order for a manager to be effective. The objective of the course is to expose the student to the theories and principles that are important for successfully managing organizations and people; serving as basis for further management studies.

MGMT 18000: WKSP: 1 Hour(s)
WORKSHOP~ This workshop will provide the opportunity for students to examine a special topic in Management. Through readings, discussions and written assignments there will be opportunities to evaluate the topic at issue. Workshops may be taken Pass/No Credit only. Students may take no more than nine workshops for credit toward graduation. Workshops can be used as elective credit only. (For PGS students only.)

MGMT 22100: GROUP INTERACTION PROCESSES: 3 Hour(s)
GROUP INTERACTION PROCESSES ~ This course examines the complex dynamics of small group life within the context of organizational systems. Small group theory as it applies to perception, membership, leadership, norms, communication, problem-solving and decision making is explored. The focus of the course is to develop individual competence in group settings. Through a laboratory approach students are provided with opportunities to experiment with new behaviors and to improve group effectiveness. Students experience the development of a group through predictable stages and engage in critical analysis of the experiment. A group project is required. Also listed as Communication (221 or 22100).

MGMT 22200: ORGANIZATIONAL COMMUNICATION: 4 Hour(s)
ORGANIZATIONAL COMMUNICATION ~ The course involves the study of communication theory as it relates to organizations. Topics include communication systems analysis, intergroup communication, team building, goal setting, meetings, and organizational change. The course requires a field research project during which students work with actual organizations to diagnose communication systems. The course contains a significant writing component. Students will develop skill in writing proposals, letters, memos, agendas, progress reports, final reports, and executive summaries as they progress through the field research project. Also listed as Communication (222 or 22200). Prerequisite: Management (218 or 21800), or Communication (220 or 22000).
Prerequisite: (MGMT 218 or MGMT 21800) or (COMM 220 or COMM 22000)
MGMT 22400: INFLUENCE & NEGOTIATION SKILLS: 3 Hour(s)
INFLUENCE AND NEGOTIATION SKILLS~ Negotiation and influence skills are key components of everyday life. We negotiate daily with potential employers, co-workers, bosses, landlords, merchants, service providers, partners, parents/children, friends, roommates, and many other people. Although we negotiate often, many of us know very little about the strategy and psychology of effective negotiation. The purpose of the course is to develop expertise in managing negotiations and to understand the influence tactics so often used to persuade us (most notably among salespeople). This course seeks to increase your competence and confidence to confront negotiation and influence opportunities through a progressive sequence of simulations. Through this process we will explore your own personal style and its impact, as well as specific areas for individual development. We will encourage you to expand your negotiation toolkit and develop greater strategic flexibility across situations and people by encouraging you to try out new behaviors and strategies. Prerequisites: Management (218 or 21800).
Prerequisite: (MGMT 218 or MGMT 21800)

MGMT 22700: PROJECT MANAGEMENT: 4 Hour(s)
PROJECT MANAGEMENT ~ Project Management is both people and process (technical) oriented, and is a discipline where one must oversee complex, and often very unique projects to meet organization’s strategic goals. Special attention will be given to understand first what a project is, and how they differ from standard processes. As a prospective project manager, organizational and management skills will be taught and developed to improve the chances of making a project successful. Project management coordinates a vast and complex network of vendors, subcontractors, project team members, senior management, functional managers, and customers. We will explain and teach how to build a high-performance project team. The goal of successful project management is to help the project stakeholders understand the role of the project within the organization. Emphasis will be on developing and mastering the project manager's tools, techniques, and interpersonal skills necessary to manage projects. Emphasis will include project proposal, commercial terms, starting, running and completion of the project along with financial analysis, closure and lessons learned.

MGMT 22800: COMPARATIVE HR MGMT:EW: 3 Hour(s)
COMPARATIVE HUMAN RESOURCE MANAGEMENT:EW~ Human resource management practices vary considerably across organizations and countries. Personnel management concerns—recruitment and retention, compensation and evaluation, among many others—are universal. However, the handling of them is generally place-specific or contextual. This course examines various core human resource management issues through a comparative lens. Therefore, students will gain exposure to personnel management practices in the United States and other countries. Through this survey of comparative human resource management practices, students will focus on three units of analysis—employees, employers, and government—and develop a working sense of how HR management is a product of complex and sometimes fluid forces. This course fulfills the Experiencing the World requirement Core: Experiencing the World

MGMT 23000: STOCK MARKET INVESTMENT I: 2 Hour(s)
INVESTMENT CLUB II~ The emphasis of this course is understanding the stock and bond markets. Fundamental techniques for analyzing stocks and bonds are introduced and applied. Advanced investment strategies such as short sales, margin, options, and futures are also discussed.
